

Job Description

ISO Senior Product Designer to join our growing team.

We democratizes text analysis for businesses and government professionals by allowing them to do cutting edge analysis without technical knowhow. This opens up a sea of opportunities, and is also a design challenge.

We're looking for a highly-skilled Senior Product Designer to help us scale, addressing rapidly growing demand from large enterprises and government institutions.

You'll lead the design of our state-of-the-art zero-code ML/NLP platform and spearhead our design thinking. You'll work closely with clients, engineering & research to drive product releases. You'll also work with our executive team on creating the narratives and the materials driving our sales & marketing.

The platform you'll be shaping enables decision makers presiding over mission-critical operations that address the most challenging problems impacting people's lives (yours included).

Your daily adventures will include:

- Designing prototypes, wireframes, and user flows; negotiating specs with Product
- Contributing to strategic decisions alongside Product
- Ensuring consistent design targeted at non-technical users

We are looking for:

- Experience building and shipping complex web apps
- 4+ years as a Product Designer, able and willing to take it the full way from an idea to product
- Familiarity w/agile methodologies
- Clear communicator of ideas and design decisions, w/a strong sense of design and design trends
- Expert user of design tools of your choice (e.g., Miro, Figma, Sketch)
- Baseline knowledge of analytic and testing methodologies
- Interest in and empathy for our end users - you are a user rep, not an engineer rep
- Mobile app development experience (a bonus)

Why you'll love it here:

- Your work will meaningfully impact millions of people worldwide
- Capable, ambitious, supportive, and worldly colleagues holding 10 passports and speaking 13 languages
